CANNON FIRM CHANGE.

Brothers Sell to Family Association Which Will Conduct Business.

The late President George Q. Cannon shortly before his death placed the greater part of his large estate into a corporation which he named the George Q. Cannon association, providing also in his will that his heirs must leave their inheritance under the care of this corporation until the youngest child became 40 years of age. It was his belief and constant teaching to his family that by unity they would be able to accomplish very much more than the sum total of their efforts if they were divided. He wished to have such a condition exist that the stronger members of the family would be helpful to the weaker ones, and had a horror of any of his descendants being without productive employment. Since the death of President Cannon the efforts of the association have been Itches, oozes, dries and scales over and over again; local applications do not cure it because they cannot remove its cause, which is an impure condition of the blood. The most obstinate cases have been perfectly and permanently cured by a course of along the lines of developing and caring for the resources left by him. With in the last few days, however, this corporation has acquired the real estate and brokerage business that has been carried on by Cannon Brothers who are members of the association. They have also bought the live stock and ranching interests that have been successfully operated by this firm. Hugh J. Cannon president and manager of the association will be directly in charge of the real estate department, and Preston J. Cannon will represent the company on the Salt Lake Stock and Mining Exchange. The association is at present one of the largest owners of real estate in the city and state, their holdings amounting to about 40,000 acres. Their city property is situated on Main and other prominent streets. The association is also the owner of large interests in mining and other corporations. It seems natural, therefore, that the management should be very successful in looking after the interests of the public.

In connection with the association, three of its members have organized an architectural and engineering firm, who will do business under the name of Cannon Brothers. This firm consists of Lewis Telle Cannon, architect, Sylvester Q. Cannon, mining and hydraulic engineer, and Willard T. Cannon, mechanical and electrical engineer, all graduates of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. These two firms, with the mining companies in which they are interested have opened up a suite of six rooms in the bank building, 24 east South Temple street, which is owned by the association.

BRIGHTON REUNION.

Annual Banquet Held Under Auspices Of Relief Society.

Last evening the annual banquet and reunion of the people of Brighton was held in the ward house, under the auspices of the Relief Society, of which Mrs. H. L. Wall is president. The event was also made the occasion of a surprise and presentation of a gold headed walking stick, appropriately engraved, to Elder E. Schoenfeld, who returns as a counselor in the Bishopric after serving in that capacity for a period of 26 years. The presentation speech was made by H. J. Wall, and the recipient responded in a feeling manner, being almost overcome with emotion at the love and thoughtfulness of his friends.

THOUGHT HE WAS ROBBED.

Complained to Police But Valuables Had Never Been Taken.

"Tut" Bigham, a carpenter, from Eureka, reported at the police station this morning that he had been robbed of drafts and green backs amounting to several hundred dollars. Detective Chase went with the man to the banks to have payment stopped and then to Bigham's room. Here the purse and letters with all the money he thought had been stolen from him, and several additional pieces of silver and gold were found. Chase then took the man to the station, where he was booked as a drunk. Bigham came from the southern mining camp yesterday and immediately proceeded to get on a spree.

CLAWSON CORNER SOLD.

Another Important Real Estate Deal In Salt Lake Recorded.

DeWitt B. Lowe closed a deal yesterday for the purchase of the corner of South Temple and Third East streets, 165x80 feet, known as the Clawson corner, at $175 per front foot. The grantor is G. Lavagnino, and it is the purpose of Mr. Lowe to erect an apartment house on the site in the spring. Fred Hale is drawing the plans now.

SILKEN RUG HAS INTERESTING STORY.

Valued at $7,500, it Attracts Throngs About Keith-O'Brien's Windows.

This is the only silk rug on the market that has the old Persian design of the Kirman rugs. It looks as if it were 200 to 250 years old. It was made in Kirman. (All those of Persian make low on the market are made in Tahriz.)

This is the story of a carpet that is doing its best to turn the heads of one-half of the citizens of Salt Lake. The rug is not merely a handsome weave hung in a store window, nor one of those pieces of art which attract attention only because of its great price, its value being $7,500. And the valuation represents but a small portion of the vast sums which at diverse times have passed hands through its purchase. Valuation has risen and fallen, according to the estimate of the holder. Like its sister rug in the possession of J. Pierpont Morgan, it has sold for more than three times its present price and very likely will again command a fortune.

Its history is as interesting as it is checked. Struggle, tragedy, litigation, keenest joy upon possession, mark a few of the incidents pertaining to its career. It has traveled. Former owners include royalty and wealth, while it has even been parted with because of encumbered circumstances. Valuation has accordingly fluctuated throughout the vicissitudes which have befallen its life. The rug today is more beautiful than when the light first fell upon its completion. From out the dark past rolling years have softened the silken threads and mellowed the gorgeous blending of the variegated shades and changeable hues.

The lives of two royal weavers are woven into its body, they having devoted their lifetimes to it, but this does not cause the thrill. It is the unconscious influence which it exercises over one who beholds it for the first time. Devotees say it is because of the wonderful design; the quivering mass of colors, blending so harmoniously as to smoulder with life the ever-changing hues that come and go like the colors of a rainbow in a fountain's spray, or like the scintillations of the Kohinoor. The peculiar blue and red in the design are lost colors in art, and no longer capable of reproduction. The rug is of pure silk to the last thread. A monument to Persian art it seems to be nothing less than a painting from one of the old masters, and in the blend of colors which are to be seen only upon the canvas of an inspired artist.

It is little wonder that connoisseurs go into raptures upon viewing this sacred and valuable gem. Visitors linger before it by the hour, and experts declare that it is the handsomest carpet now in America. One Eastern millionaire who saw the carpet declares it to be fully equal to the magnificent specimen secured by J. Pierpont Morgan at an expense of $25,000, excepting that the latter rug is slightly larger. The owner says that the sacred emblem, cunningly wrought in the borders, the tree of life woven in its corners, and the sacred character of its birth, have much to do with the influence of the fabric upon all who behold it. This masterpiece, according to the official reports from Persia, is the imperial throne rug, woven for Shah Nader, who was Shah of Persia in the Seventeenth century. It has had many owners in its time, but has finally been acquired by Paul S. Gurgalian, importer of specimens of Oriental art. It has been in his possession but a short time, but its reputation has spread and many local connoisseurs have gazed upon the treasure. Its dimensions are 12x9 feet. This magnificent rug is now on view in one of Keith-O'Brien's windows.

NEVALA SUFFERS FROM COAL FAMINE.

Reno, Nev., Dec. 1.—Unless the fuel famine in Nevada is broken immediately suffering and sickness and even death will follow in the wake of the storm which has raged for the past two days in southern Nevada. Coal cannot be obtained in Goldfield or Tonopah and wood is bringing exorbitant prices. Telephone poles are now being burned, but a railroad of wood is now being rushed into southern Nevada and the famine in Goldfield and Tonopah will in all probability be relieved before many days. The fuel famine extends over the entire state and even in this dry coal cannot be purchased. Wood can still be secured here, but only in small quantities and at very high prices.

QUEEN ALEXANDRA'S BIRTHDAY.

London, Dec. 1.—The birthday of Queen Alexandra, who was born in 1844, was celebrated at Sandringham today by an unusually large gathering of the royal family. King Edward's gift to her majesty was a costly motor car, which was awarded honors at the recent exhibition at the Olympic in this city.

"Salt Lake County Enterprise" Will be Published at Murray. Murray, Salt Lake County, Dec. 1.—The Western Gu de Publishing company of Salt Lake City will start an independent weekly for Southern Salt Lake county under the title of "Salt Lake County Enterprise," with office in Murray city. The paper will be independent in politics and religion, and will be devoted to every interest of southern Salt Lake county. Mr. W. D. S. Mr. Harrington is well known to the business men of southern Salt Lake county as a business getter and a newspaper man, and the success of the venture is assured from the start. The company will erect a building and install a first-class printing plant consisting of cylinder and job presses, linotype machine, etc.

BIG MUSICAL FESTIVAL. A grand musical festival will be given in the Murray ward house Monday evening, Dec. 17, and repeated in the South Cottonwood ward house Tuesday, Dec. 18, and Granite stake house Wednesday, Dec. 19. This musical feast will be furnished by the combined choirs of Murray and South Cottonwood, consisting of 75 voices, assisted by the Murray orchestra of eight pieces. Choristers Robinson and Ballard have been drilling the two choirs separately and combined for over three months.

The writer has recently listened to their rehearsal and also had the pleasure of hearing them at the last quarterly conference in the stake house, and can assure the public that they will be well entertained in attending the sacred cantata entitled "Daniel."

One of the objects in getting up this entertainment is to assist in building the new ward house in Murray First ward. The building will be a credit to Murray and the stake, and is worthy of public support from that standpoint, although all patrons will more than get their money's worth from the musicale itself.

South Cottonwood is certainly entitled to much praise for contributing its services to help make it a success. It is hoped the public will support all performances by attending them in force.
